HUGE HOLIDAY CROWD EXPECTED AS CARMEL WELCOMES VISITORS FOR FOURTH OF JULY VACATION

THE conjunction of a week-end, the most important national holiday, and a "good" season has geared Carmel to the expectation of the greatest influx of visitors in several years today, tomorrow, the Fourth of July, and Sunday. In some quarters, it is predicted from advance reservations that this week-end will break all records. Hotels are expecting one of the peak registrations of the season, cottages have been going like hot cakes, and merchants are prepared with extra help to keep service flowing smoothly.

The holiday will be celebrated quietly here. There is no general civic program or demonstration planned, but in the Carmel custom, there will be many house parties for rest, recreation and enjoyment of simple pleasures. Except on the beach sand-dunes, use of fireworks within the city limits is prohibited by city ordinance, because of the danger of fire. More exuberant aspects of the traditional celebration of the Glorious Fourth will be confined to the upper end of the beach, where the younger generation will find full scope for their noisy demonstrations.

This week has also seen the arrival of many regular summer residents who are returning to their Carmel homes for a month or two, or have engaged cottages for the longer or shorter period. Onset of the real summer heat in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys has brought scores of part-time Carmelites to take refuge in their beloved village, as well as many from the bay region, Southern California, and the usual cosmopolitan crowd from far distant places.

In Monterey, a four-day celebration will begin tomorrow, in observance of Independence Day, coming to a climax with a celebration of the 90th birthday of America on the Pacific next Tuesday. The presence of the heavy cruiser, U. S. S. Minneapolis, in Monterey harbor, and the cooperation of Monterey Presidio, will give a naval and military flavor to the festivities.

Tomorrow morning a gala parade will wind through the streets of the historic California capital; there will be concerts by bands and orchestras, athletic events in the afternoon, and a brilliant display of fireworks in the evening. The Monterey Post of the American Legion has planned the celebration. Lifting of the civic ban on fireworks has already resulted in a week-long celebration of the nation's birthday, with results which Carmel visitors have declared reminiscent of the Battle of the Marne.

At the new peninsula airport, an air show will be offered Sunday under the auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Around the old Customs House museum will center the celebration of the 90th birthday of America on the Pacific, Tuesday, July 7, planned by the museum curator, Mrs. Laura Bride Powers, with the cooperation of civic, military and naval officials. It will celebrate the first raising of the Stars and Stripes on the new western territory of which Monterey was center and capital, in 1846.

Small Boys With Air Rifles Menace Carmel Wild Life

With the onset of the summer season small boys with B-B guns have again become a menace to wild life of the region, and a nuisance to householders. Their offense is three-fold: the season is closed at present on quail, the chief victim of the young hunters; it is illegal to discharge firearms of any sort within the limits of Carmel; and this entire area is a game refuge. As the police cannot be everywhere at once, it is again called to the attention of parents that it is their responsibility to make certain, if they give their boys guns, that they do not use them within the game refuge.

— Unity of Action —

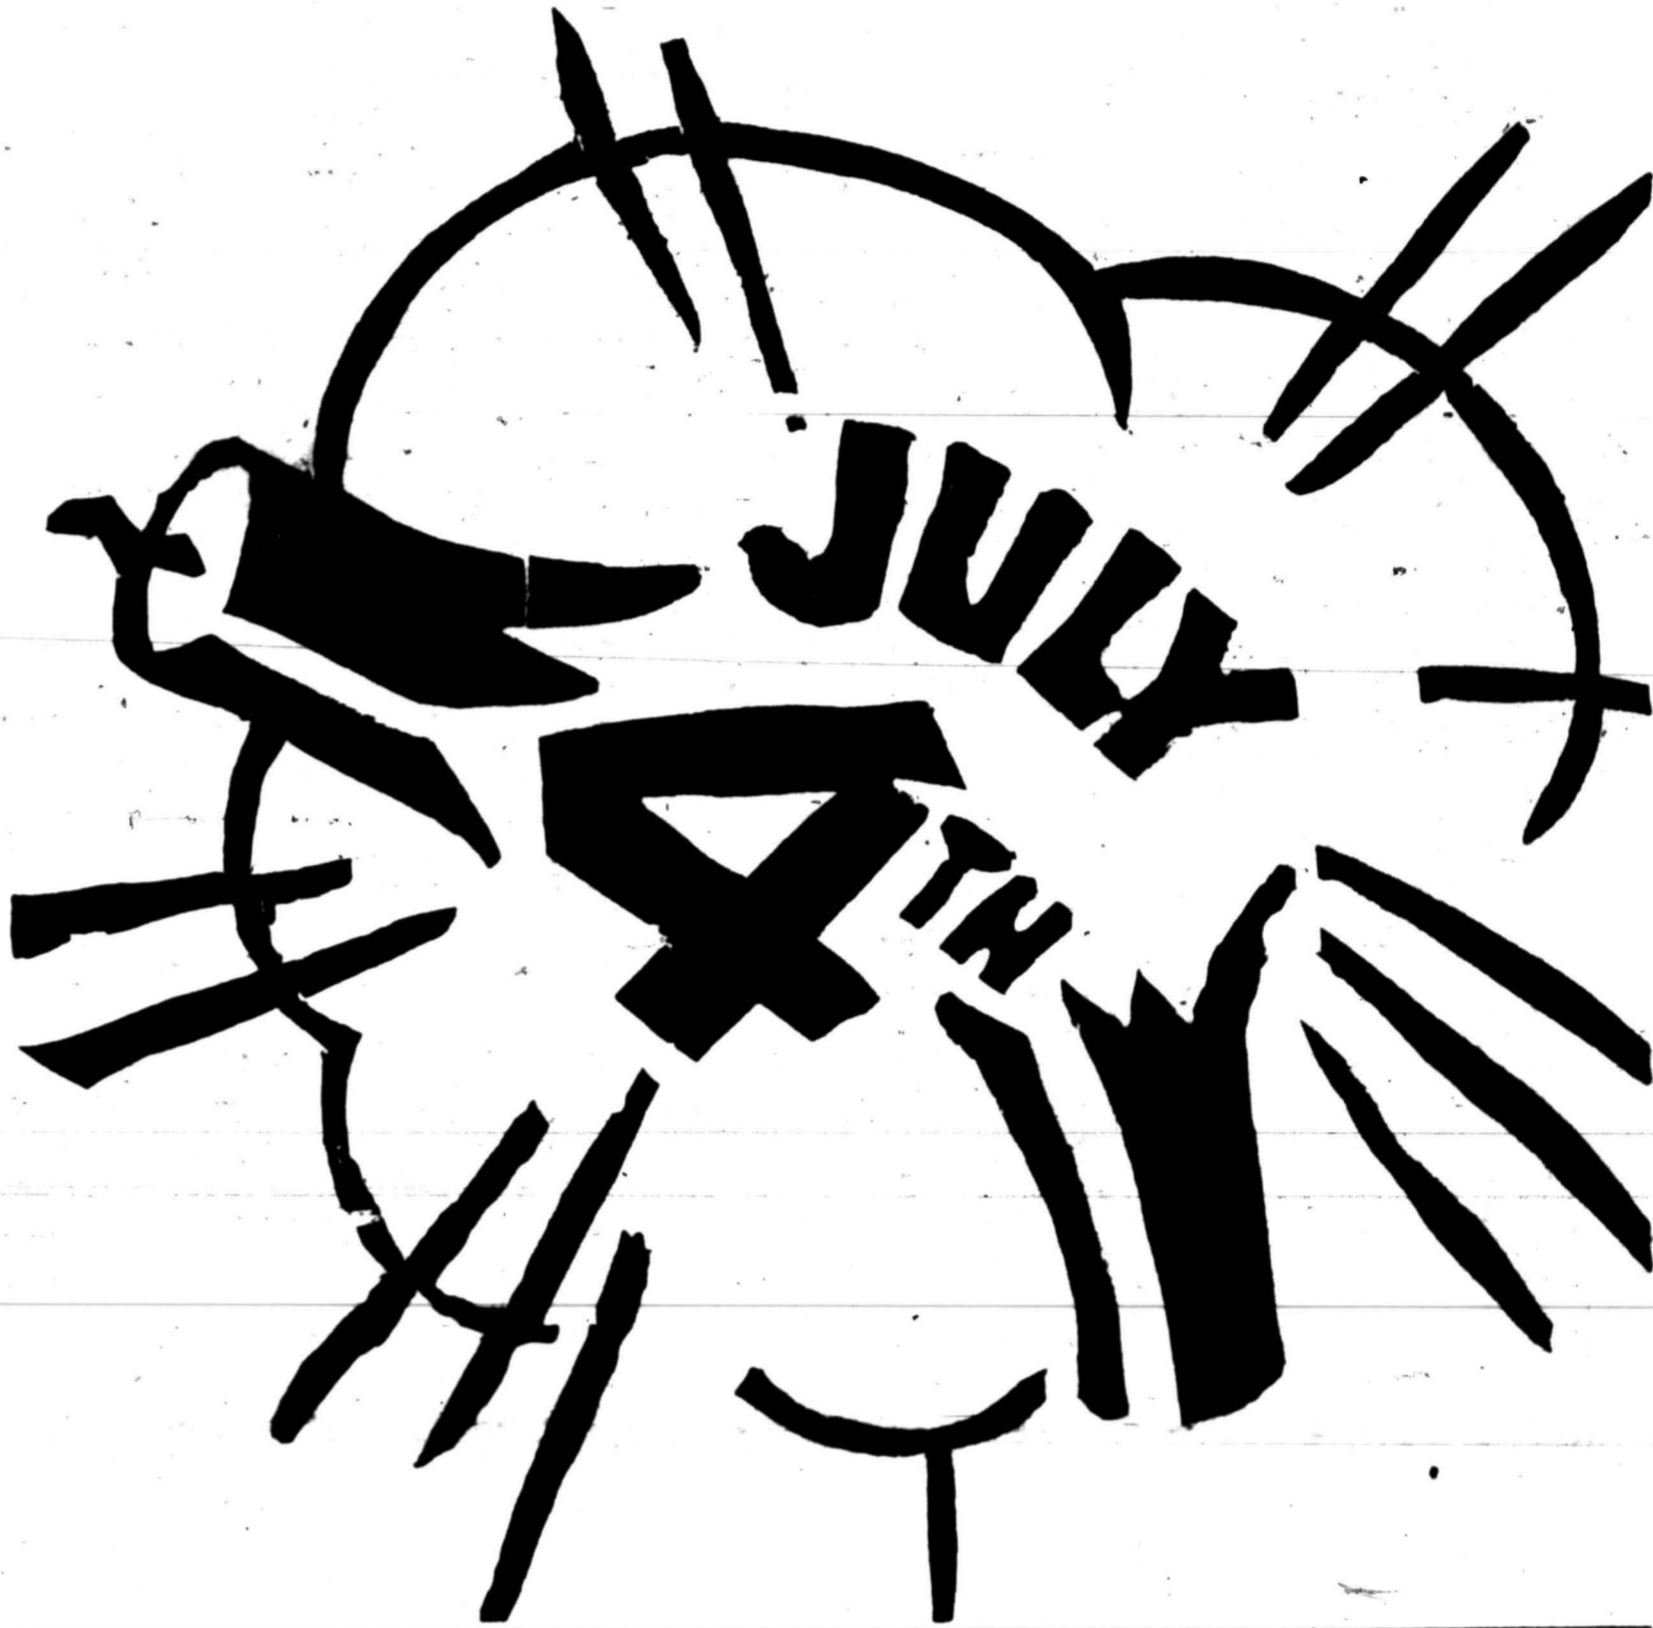

ORGANIZE TO PROMOTE BACH FESTIVAL HERE

AS a concrete indication of community endorsement, and to assist in as many ways as possible in promoting the Bach Festival, a Carmel Bach Festival association was formed Monday evening, the outgrowth of the Monterey Peninsula Orchestra association, with additional members. The idea of the Bach Festival was originated last year by Miss Dene Denny and Miss Hazel Watrous, who have assumed both the financial risk and the hard work connected with the two Festivals. It is possible that the advisory board which is at present working with Miss Denny and Miss Watrous in an informal capacity may organize at the end of the summer as the permanent community sponsors of what it is felt will become a valuable annual event.

Members of the advisory board are: O. W. Bardarson, Mrs. John Bathen, Mrs. F. M. Blanchard, John Catlin, E. H. Ewig, Mrs. Katherine MacFarland Howe, Conrad Imelman, John Jordan, Miss Ella Kellogg, Dr. R. A. Kocher, Milton Latham, Mrs. Eugene Marble, Thelma B. Miller, Mrs. James S. Parker, Mrs. Caroline Pickit, Everett Smith, Noel Sullivan, Mrs. Gwendolyn Stearns, James Thoburn, Miss Emma Waldvogel, Willard W. Wheeler, Miss Helen Willard, Mrs. W. B. Williams, Dr. Mast Wolfson and Judge George Wood.

FIRE AT SMITH HOME

The fire department was called Saturday afternoon to the home of C. W. Smith, at Carmelo and Seventh. Mr. Smith, who had just moved into the house, attempted to light the oil furnace which flooded and filled the house with smoke. He was able to subdue the small fire before the department arrived.

Visiting Players Coming Monday

Before a combined audience made up of members of the Eastern Star of the peninsula and members of the adult education dramatic seminar which meets weekly at Sunset school, a summer theater group from Santa Cruz will present a dramatic entertainment in Sunset auditorium next Monday evening at 9 o'clock. Paul Pfeiffer is the leader of the group of Santa Cruz players who will motor down to present a scene from Macbeth and a one-act play, "The Boor." Having heard of the Carmel seminar, Mr. Pfeiffer asked for the privilege of appearing before it, to receive suggestions and criticisms on a performance which is being prepared from Santa Cruz. Miss Anne Norwood and Clay Otto, the latter the co-ordinator for the seminar, are making arrangements for the performance. Those attending will have an opportunity through donations, to assist in defraying the small transportation expense of the northern group.

During the earlier hours of the evening the advanced group of the seminar will begin the study of Galsworthy's "The Silver Box." The play will be read under the direction of Mrs. Wilma Botts. As it has a cast of 18 men and women, an invitation is extended particularly to the dramatic "talent" of Monterey and Pacific Grove, as well as Carmel's actors, to attend the seminar for the study of this strong play.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Sparks have returned after spending ten days in southern California visiting relatives.

BUILDING PROGRAM IN CARMEL FOR HALF YEAR TOTALS $26,297

AGAINST $3286 for last June, building permits in Carmel totaled $13,617.55 for the month just closing, according to the report of City Inspector B. W. Adams. This represents a total of nine permits. For the first half of 1936, Carmel has launched a building program valued at $126,297.12. It is estimated that at least 40 per cent of this figure does not represent new construction, but rather remodeling and alteration jobs ranging in cost from $150 to $600. While many homes and several commercial buildings have cost above the average of $2000 for the 67 permits issued so far this year, the large number of smaller jobs results in the comparatively low average.

Largest residential permit for the month was issued to Reginald Markham, for his frame and stucco cottage, a story-and-a-half in height, on Dolores near Thirteenth. A. D. Irving is the contractor.

A cottage owned by Daisy Bostick, on Mission between Alta and Vista, is being remodeled by M. McIntire. A $1000 permit was taken out for the remodeling of the interior of the Manzanita club.

To build a pent-house over the large store he is building on Dolores for Nielsen Brothers' grocery, Grant Wills took out a supplementary permit of $2000. The contractor is A. C. Stoney. W. B. Snook is building for William Dekker a frame and stucco cottage between Ninth and Tenth on Camino Real. It will be ready for occupancy about Aug. 1.

For R. A. Coote, Hugh Comstock has started construction on a guest cottage at the Coote home, Santa Fe near Eighth. It will be completed late in September. An alteration job is in progress at Lansing Bailey's property on Carmelo between Ninth and Tenth, under direction of Miles Bain.

C. Whitaker is building a storage shed at Mrs. J. H. Parkes property to the rear of Hallett's grocery. Byron G. Newell has authorized DeWitt Appleton to remodel his house at Eighth and Dolores into apartments.

Hanke Made Chairman Sunset School Board

Meeting informally Wednesday morning to reorganize, the Sunset school board of trustees elected A. G. E. Hanke chairman and Mrs. Louis Levinson, clerk. Donald Hale, newly-elected board member, attended his first meeting, taking the place of E. H. Ewig, whose four-year term expired this spring. The board will hold its regular monthly meeting next Tuesday evening, July 7, at 7:45, at the school. It was decided that after this month, the first Wednesday evening of each month, at 7:45, will be declared the regular time for meeting.

Rate Expert Brings Family for Vacation

While on the peninsula to attend the water hearing in which he is rate expert for the three cities, Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong of Palo Alto have been staying in Carmel, occupying Eunice T. Gray's cottage at Thirteenth and Carmelo. With them is their daughter Jackeline, and Mr. Armstrong's brother, F. E. Armstrong of Mobile, Ala. Over the weekend the family group has been joined by the mother and sister of the two gentlemen; Mrs. Harriet M. Armstrong and Mrs. Anna James of Palo Alto.

Water Hearing Draws to Close

Expected to come to a conclusion this week-end is the long-drawn-out water rate case, in which the three communities of Monterey peninsula are attempting to establish before the Railroad Commission that the rates charged by the local water company are excessive and unreasonable. Argyll Campbell, who represents Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel as attorney, was also on the stand early this week as an expert witness for the sardine packers of Monterey, giving testimony tending to show that lower rates would result in larger commercial usage, and consequently no loss of profits to the water company. Claude Rosenberg is attorney for the water company and the hearing in Monterey is before M. R. MacKall, examiner for the railroad commission.

Several Carmelites have appeared as witnesses in the hearing this week, among them Byington Ford, who testified on behalf of the company, as an expert in land values; Joseph Burge, nurseryman and city councilman, who testified on behalf of the communities as to curtailed domestic and public usage in Carmel as the result of the present rates; and Miss Clara Kellogg, member of the council, who also represented the point of view of the consumer in testifying on behalf of the community.

Francis C. Price Is Called By Death

Day after moving into his newly purchased home at Santa Fe and Fifth, Francis Charles Price, retired resident of Carmel, passed away Wednesday at the age of 75. His wife, the former Mrs. Addie Riegg, survives him. They had been married only about eight months, coming to Carmel to live from Palo Alto, Mr. Price's former home. Mr. Price was a native of Shrewsbury, England, coming to the United States 50 years ago. He had resided in California for many years. Funeral and interment were in Palo Alto, with local arrangements in charge of the J. E. Freeman mortuary.

Jacobinoff Plays In San Francisco Concert

Sascha Jacobinoff, director of the Bach Festival, went to Berkeley over the week-end to play the Bach E major concerto, which he will play in the Festival here, at the Federal Symphony concert in the Greek theater Sunday afternoon, with Ernst Bacon as conductor. To the programmed numbers, Bacon added his new suite, "Country Roads—Unpaved," which had been given its premier in San Francisco Friday evening.

While in the north Mr. Jacobinoff also engaged Marian Moulin as flute soloist for the festival. She recently played one of the Bach concertos in Berkeley, and "reads Bach beautifully," according to Jacobinoff. He also added that she both "looks and plays like an angel."

Miss Mary Darby of Santa Cruz has purchased a home in Carmel.

Arrests By Police Here Shatter All Records; 61 Made During June

COMPLETELY shattering all previous records, over a score of arrests have again been made by Carmel police during the past week, most of them for minor traffic violations. The police declare that no special "drive" against traffic violations is in progress; while some special caution is being exercised due to summer street congestion, the offenses have been such that they could not be overlooked.

During the month of June, a total of 61 arrests were made by the police department. It is pointed out that until this month, the arrests for an entire year have scarcely passed this figure.

Only three of the arrests of the past week were for other than traffic violations. Leonard C. Lakeman was arrested Saturday evening on Camino Del Monte, for driving while intoxicated. He collided with some object, the car overturned, and the driver suffered a broken nose. He paid a fine of $50 in Judge George

L. Wood's court Monday. John Shimch, arrested Saturday for being intoxicated in a public place, was given a 30-day jail sentence, suspended on condition of good behavior. Arrested Tuesday night for public drunkenness, Harry Turner was sentenced Wednesday to spend 30 days in the county jail.

For such offenses as speeding, ignoring stop signs, parking near fire hydrants or across sidewalks, and having headlights or tail-lights out, 18 arrests were made. A number of the drivers were found not to have either drivers' licenses, certificates of registration, or both. These receiving tickets were: Raymond P. Watts, Oakland; Chester M. Glover, San Carlos, Calif.; Henrietta W. Williams, Los Angeles; Edward De Candia, Stockton; Herrick Alden, Carmel; Johnson C. Lange, Robert Lewis Coleman, San Francisco; H. W. Hall, Monterey; G. Jackson, Salinas; Sam Villa, Monterey; Henry Reeves, Salinas; M. F. Brotherton, Walla Walla, Wash.; F. J. Wooliever, Monterey; Richard L. Bare, Carmel; Ella Winter Steffens, Carmel; P. N. Lillenthal, Burlingame; Earl Williams, Los Angeles, and John Patrick, San Francisco.

Community Dramatic Group Will Present "The Circle" Here Aug. 8

Carmel's summer is not to pass entirely without amateur dramatics, it was learned this week, with the announcement that "The Circle," by Somerset Maugham, will be presented Aug. 8 by a cast of well-known Carmel amateur actors. The production is sponsored by Carmel Community Players, and is the outgrowth of study at the adult education dramatics seminar, meeting each Monday evening at Sunset school.

As part of its class work, the seminar took up the brilliant Maugham play for reading and study some weeks ago. The subtlety of its dialogue gave an opportunity for particularly intensive work, and with George Marion coaching them for inflection and sensitive interpretation, the group has benefited vastly. Finding themselves increasingly enthusiastic about the play, the group decided to learn lines and offer a public performance. The Community Players willingly agreed to assume responsibility of managing the play.

A request will be made for the use of Sunset auditorium for the performance of the play, Aug. 8.

With more than a month still to go, most members of the cast are already letter perfect in the first act, and in most of the second act. The preparation of this play represents an experiment, and a new departure. An unusually long time for study has been allowed, to see if it is possible for amateurs to learn their parts to absolute perfection, so that there will be no fumbling for lines in the performance.

Assigned to parts in the play are Marion Todd, Lloyd Weer, Ross C. Miller, Dr. W. B. Williams, Elizabeth Todd, Frank Work, and Thelma B. Miller. Charlotte Lawrence is understudying all the feminine roles. One minor part is still to be assigned.

Miss Patricia Appleton of Berkeley spent the week-end here with Mr. and Mrs. M. W. McLaren.

Forest Theater In Need of Funds to Save It for Carmel; Figures Given

THE Forest Theater is in trouble. Unless funds are raised to pay the City of Carmel $850 in taxes, $365 in penalties, the county $285, and a mortgage of $600, the 16 lots and buildings that comprise the property will be sold to satisfy the debt.

The Forest Theater, second oldest outdoor stage in California, has been the center of the local classical drama for 27 years. Famous actors have trod its boards, successful playwrights have tried out their plays there, and thousands have come to Carmel to attend performances or to take part. In the early days the Forest Theater was better known than Carmel itself, and numerous families came here to live or to spend the summer because of it.

In all, 100 plays were presented and some $50,000 paid out, mostly to local merchants. It is estimated $15,000 was spent in national advertising, all of which benefited the city. As yet, the City of Carmel has made no contribution to the support of the theater, which was conducted wholly for the benefit of the community.

When the city sewer system was installed, regardless of the fact that the Forest Theater is a park and amphitheater, each of its 16 lots was assessed $33 for sewer connections, although none were contemplated. Monterey county has forgiven the theater all penalties till Sept. 1, but the $365 penalties owing the city will stand, unless the council elects to abolish them.

The heavy taxation placed on the property is largely responsible for its present deplorable financial situation. Unless something is done to reduce the debt and place some money in the treasury, no plays will be presented at the Forest Theater this season, and hundreds of summer visitors will be disappointed.

The value of the Forest Theater to Carmel can hardly be overestimated. Young amateurs have received valuable training there, and have since become successful professionals. Residents and visitors have seen the greatest dramas from Shakespeare to Bernard Shaw, and on down to the present.

The matchless beauty of this natural amphitheater in the woods has been an inspiration to this part of California for years, and has attracted celebrities from all parts of the country to take part as actors, playwrights and directors. Thousands throughout the United States will feel a pang of regret to learn that California's most beautiful outdoor theater, its richest in tradition and background, if not in money, is threatened with extinction.

Among those who have played, directed, or written plays for the Forest Theater may be mentioned: Perry Newberry, Herbert Heron, Harry Leon Wilson, George Marion, Mary Austin, Don Lee, Sidney Coe Howard, George Sterling, Edward Kuster, Maroni Olsen, Garnet Holm, Alice Hegan Rice, Galt Bell, Helen Ware, Frederick Burt, and many others.

Wide Interest In Bach Festival

Much more than last year, the approaching Bach Festival is attracting attention not only all over California, but in many other states as well. Reservations for both hotel and cottage accommodations are coming in for the Bach Festival period, July 20 to 28, and inquiries and reservations for tickets are being received daily by the Denny-Watrous management.

As an example of the interest aroused on the outside is this letter from Patricia Wilson of Pasadena, who writes:

"As secretary of the Bach society of the California Institute of Technology, I am writing to ask if there is any possibility of the members of our chorus being given any sort of rate on a season-ticket for your festival. As this is the first year of our existence, we feel it would be quite an education to hear your concerts, and would like to have it possible for at least half the group to attend.

"Also, could you spare about 30 folders, or as many as you can, as I would like to distribute them at our Friday rehearsal."

LIGHT GLOBE USERS

Americans are the most extravagant people in the world in many things, one of which is in the use of electric light globes. We use five per year per person while Denmark has an average of only 1.75 a person. The average in Europe is 1.5. Maybe they go to bed earlier abroad and do not get as much out of life as we do after the sun sets.

COUNTY TRAFFIC ARRESTS

Courts must cooperate with California highway patrol officers if the state's roads are to be made safe, says Ray Ingels, director of motor vehicles, in announcing that support from the bench is far from perfect. Monterey county courts heard 408 highway patrol traffic violation charges in April and dismissed 50 cases.

Visitors Banned Under Quarantine Rule at Hospital

A statement has been issued from Peninsula Community Hospital to the effect that a voluntary quarantine has been established there until further notice. This was found advisable after a suspected case of scarlet fever was discovered in the hospital. A meeting of the staff and board of directors resulted in the decision to establish the voluntary quarantine, in order to protect both the patients and the public.

Pistol Club Is Black and Blue

The Blues are blue—but the Blacks are happy.

Why? Because the Blacks—which is the designation of one of the club's teams in last Sunday's match—out-shot the Blues. All the shooters at the range, even the losers, had a very good time and it is planned to have more matches of the same kind, where all members present are divided into two teams of nearly equal shooting strength.

As a result of this shoot the Blues will supply the eats for the next Pistol Club meeting, next Tuesday night, July 7, in the club room in the Williams building at 7:30 p. m. And the Blacks say the eats had better be good. The scores were as follows:

BLACKS
Hatton Martin, captain	50 yds. 183
Earl Griffen	25 yds. 193
Cooper Anderson	182
Frederic Burt	176
George Carter	174

CITY COFFERS SWELLED

Declining each month from the December peak of $29,304, the month when the largest volume of city taxes is paid, the city coffers are swelled to a minor extent each month by the payments of either redemptions or city business licenses. During June, income from this source totaled $866.22, according to the report of T. J. Heffling, deputy tax and license collector. Of this $250.72 represented redemptions; $615.50, business license payments.

Aristocrats of Canine World to Parade at Del Monte on July 12

There is much excitement among the canine members of society over the coming Del Monte Kennel Club show which takes place at Del Monte Hotel on Sunday, June 12. The show will be benched between the hotel and the pool—handy for those who get discouraged and want to end it all.

Many young socialites are making their debut this year, among them the following: Bruce Watson and his son, Christopher Robin Hill, and Lucky Cleghorn, who will be found by their friends in the cocker spaniel section; Peter Greatwood, grave Scottish terrier; a group of ingratiating young Welsh terriers, Gwylum and Byrnelles Blinks and Carne Dulfer; Tweed Clark, Schnauzer; Joe Sullivan and Minna Dougherty, upholding the honor of the Dachshund tribe. Entries from many others are coming in daily.

Of course the old sophisticates from the following kennels will be present: Sealyham terriers from Dr. and Mrs. Ed Kehr's Baycrest Kennels; cockers from the Hatton Fields Kennels of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. E. Hanke; pointers and cockers from Aguajita Kennels owned by Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Gentry; Kerry Blue terriers from the Misses Shannon and Chesebrough's Valleyfield Kennels; Welsh terriers and standard French poodles from Miss Marion Kingsland's Del Monte Kennels.

Among the out-of-town visitors will be Gary Cooper and his Sealyham, who went Best in Show at Santa Barbara last week; Charlie Ruggles and his winning French poodles and Schnauzers. Many canine visitors will be at the hotel with their owners.

A pedigreed cocker spaniel will be given as a gate prize, the award being made at 4:30 on Sunday.

Children's handling classes at 4 o'clock will be judged by ever-popular Mrs. C. Halstead Yates of Carmel, who for years has held a judge's license in this country, and was famous in the east as a breeder of German shepherds and Dalmatians—witness her faithful shadow, the beautiful "Domino."

The judging schedule will be published in The Pine Cone next week, so that those who have particular favorites among the breeds can be there to see them judged.

Officials of the show are S. F. B. Morse, president; Carl Stanley, vice president; T. C. Peterson, vice president; Henry Tiedemann, treasurer; and Miss Marion Kingsland, secretary. On the bench show committee are Mrs. C. Halstead Yates, Mrs. Colden Whitman and Miss Phyllis Russell.

New Wing at Hotel La Playa Open Tomorrow for Holiday Visitors

RUSHED to completion so that it could be put into service in time to fill Fourth of July week-end reservations, the new 14-room addition to Hotel La Playa, opens tomorrow. The new wing adjoins the main building on the south; two stories in height. By use of frequent setbacks, many of the rooms on each floor have corner windows which take full advantage of the magnificent marine view. The interior is finished throughout, both rooms and corridors, in a warm off-white, a unique note being the cerise doors which set the keynote for the use of great deal of soft bright color in the furnishing and decorations.

Both in structure and decoration, the modern note is struck. Each room is treated individually. The floors are covered with carpet from wall to wall; solid-color carpeting in a variety of tones; a lovely turquoise, a bright blue, soft brown, beige, and other attractive shades. Chintzes in smart modern patterns are used throughout for harmonizing with the carpet colors, and further emphasized or complemented by the trim of the furniture, in lamps, spreads, and other decorative features. Showing a trend away from color in bathrooms, all the baths in the new hotel wing are finished in white, including the linoleum, and the fixtures are chrome nickel.

Among notable structural details are a new type of steam-heating appliance, by concealed radiation, so that the radiators are recessed in the walls behind grills, while a forced draft circulates the heat. Ceiling lights are recessed behind diffused glass. Celotex insulating board is used on the floors, which, with heavy pads and thick carpets, provides effective sound-proofing from floor to floor.

At the end of the hall on each floor, two rooms can be thrown together to form a suite, with its own private vestibule closed off from the rest of the corridor. Specially fine view is available from these deluxe quarters. A small dressing room connects the two rooms of the suite.

Two rooms have been refinished in the main building, and "garden rooms" have been roughed in on the basement floor of the annex, with a view to converting them in the future into particularly charming and spacious apartments.

Cost of the new wing, exclusive of furnishings, is estimated at about $18,000. Hugh Comstock is the builder, and Mrs. Havens Monteagle has had charge of the interior decoration.

Carmel Singer Wins Honors In Radio Contest

STEEN SKONHOTT

STEEN SKONHOTT'S many Carmel friends and musical associates have been well pleased this week to learn that, after broadcasting with other artists of Monterey and Santa Cruz counties over the California's Hour radio program, he has been declared the winner in the preliminaries and will contest in the semi-finals in Los Angeles in August. Steen came down from San Francisco last summer and made his home here for a number of months. He was one of the soloists of the Bach Festival last year, and made a tremendous hit in a variety program given at Denny-Watrous Gallery, in which he sang a group of Ernst Bacon's original songs on folk themes, with the composer, a close friend, accompanying him. During the past year he has sung with the Federal Symphony in San Francisco, under Bacon's baton.

For the win in Los Angeles, Skonhott receives $50. Should he likewise achieve success in the semi-finals, the prize will be $100 and a chance to compete in the finals, with artists from all over the state. He received the largest vote from listeners all over the state when he sang "When the Flame of Love," an aria from Bizet's little known opera, "La Jolie Pille de Perth." He was one of ten competing artists from this section.

For a number of months past the young baritone has been living a hermit's existence, alone with his dog and an ancient reed organ, in a shack on a cliff in the Big Sur region. Talent scouts for California's Hour sought him out, at the suggestion of Carmelites, and he is reported to have been not too eager to leave his self-imposed solitude. As well as being a singer, Skonhott is a painter, and has exhibited in Europe and America.

To Read Drama at Filmarte Tuesday

First of a series of dramatic readings by Baldwin McGraw and Emma Knox will be given Tuesday evening in conjunction with the regular motion picture program. The readings will continue through July with one being given every Tuesday evening.

Elsewhere in The Pine Cone will be found the excellent program of motion pictures to appear at the Filmarte tonight and all the week following.

Mrs. Harry Hunt and her daughter, Miss Mary Hayne, returned to Pebble Beach this week after an extended visit in Europe.

Halldis Stabell Back In Her Carmel Home

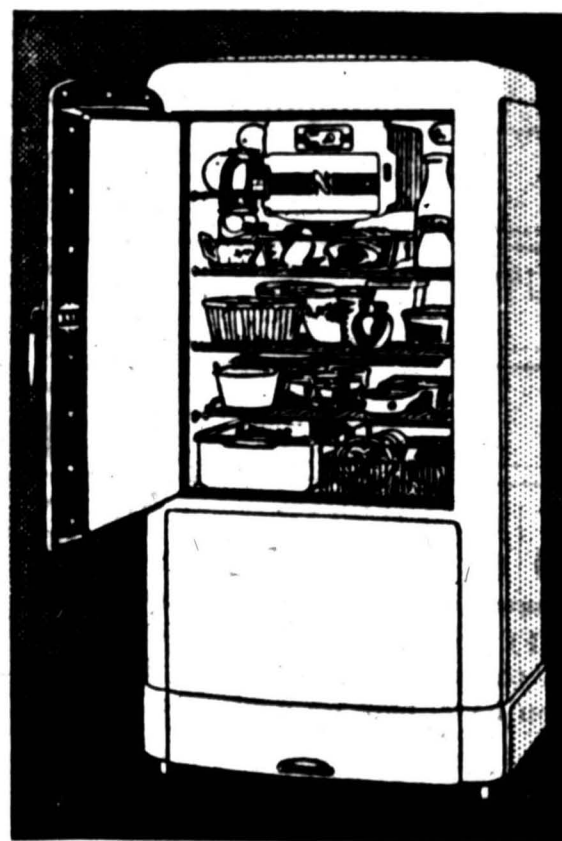

Back in her own home on Mission is Halldis Stabell, whose own glowing presence is the best argument for her particular methods of building a sound and beautiful body. Miss Stabell has concluded a busy winter season in Southern California, and as usual has another full year outlined, beginning with her summer classes here in Carmel.

Living in Pasadena, she had her private morning classes, and then filled many lecture and class engagements for various colleges in the southland. She lectured at Pomona for teachers of physical education and their students, and at the southern branch of U. C. she gave a similar course of lectures, as well as addressing groups from various other institutions. In the fall she goes again to the bay region, and in the spring she will go to Seattle to lecture before the Medical Association, at the University of Washington, and for various other schools and clubs.

Third Installment of Engineers' Report on Carmel Sanitary District

FOLLOWING is the third installment of the engineers' report on the Carmel Sanitary District as submitted by Hugh Comstock, president of the board:

Disposal on Land

The possibilities of disposal into the ocean, into Carmel Bay and into Carmel river being rejected by various valid objections to each, there remains by elimination only the method of disposal on land. This will be considered herein in relation to site, methods of treatment and costs in the remainder of this report. All these factors are inter-related, and have been considered for each possible site, but for the sake of brevity are not completely detailed for each site.

The Place of Disposal

The various sites for disposal presented in Mr. Kennedy's report have been investigated, and in addition the entire adjacent region has been looked over to ascertain if other satisfactory sites are available.

The sites presented in Mr. Kennedy's report were designated as Sites "A", "B", and "C", as follows:

Site "A"—at the corner or bend in Scenic Road, near the present disposal plant;

Site "B"—the present disposal site enlarged by an additional strip 150 feet wide;

Site "C"—about two acres adjacent to and southwesterly from the southwestern line of the Mission Orchard Tract.

A site a little further easterly from Site "C" has also been considered by Mr. Kennedy.

In my opinion, Site "A" would not prove to be an economical location because of excessive cost of acquiring land at this location. The property has a high valuation for residential purposes, which makes its cost of acquisition too high to be justified if an equally satisfactory or better site is available elsewhere at a price which is reasonable in relation to the purpose.

Site "B" suffers also from the same difficulty as Site "A", though probably to a somewhat less extent. It has the further disadvantage, which in my mind eliminates it from consideration, that heavy bulkhead construction will be necessary to protect the site and the structures from damage by storm erosion, and also from ocean encroachment due to possible changes in beach alignment.

Sites "A" and "B" are also not especially desirable for the reason that there is a psychological factor to consider. Although a sewage treatment plant can be designed on either site which would be architecturally satisfactory, and which if operated properly at all times would be entirely free from nuisance, nevertheless the Sanitary District would find itself faced with a constant agitation against the plant by persons owning or occupying property in the vicinity, and possibly also by legal actions for damages. It is possible that a sufficiently plausible case for depreciation of values of adjacent property might be made out, to become a source of some embarrassment to the District. For these reasons I do not recommend either Site "A" or Site "B".

Site "C", if it can be obtained at a reasonable price, is in my opinion a satisfactory site. It is quite well isolated from any present residential property, and is well screened from sight in most directions by trees. I understand, however, that strenuous objection to the location of a sewage treatment plant in this vicinity has been voiced by the nearby Carmel Mission. In my opinion the objection is based on a misunderstanding of the facts. A properly designed and operated plant on this site would not be a detriment to the Carmel Mission. If there were no other satisfactory available site, I would not hesitate to recommend Site "C". The similar site somewhat easterly from Site "C" does not appear to be quite so satisfactory on some counts, but is still a possible site if required.

However, there is another site, which I will herein designate as the "island" site (shown in approximate location on the map accompanying this report) which presents certain advantages over the other possible sites, and which has comparatively few disadvantages, none of them of first importance.

The advantages of the island site are the low actual and relative value of the land, its isolation, and its practically complete concealment from view in all directions. The area is not suitable for either agricultural or residential development, and it is not now used for any purpose.

The disadvantages of the island site are:

- A road will have to be constructed from the highway to the plant, for access in all weather;
- The site is subject to possible back-water flooding at extreme high-water stages of the Carmel river in winter or early spring. This will require that the structures in the treatment plant be designed to resist flotation, but this is a simple matter.

Careful attention must be given to foundation support, and the principal structures supported on piling;

- A river crossing for the out-fall sewer must be provided, as well as an above-ground sewer for a part of the distance, but the technical difficulties for such design can be solved;
- The upper foot in depth of the soil at this site is too fine for satisfactory disposal of the treated sewage, and it will be necessary to remove the upper foot of soil from the filter area, and haul in beach sand, but this can be done at a reasonable cost.

I therefore recommend that the "island" site be chosen as the place of sewage treatment and disposal for the Carmel Sanitary District. In my opinion it has no serious disadvantages, and has certain positive advantages over all other sites. In addition, it is favorably situated in relation to a possible future growth of the Sanitary District east of the state highway and north of the Carmel river.

Brilliant Array of Programs to Make July Fourth Holiday Happy

FOR the July Fourth holiday the Filmarte offers a brilliant array of varied programs, starting today with a re-engagement of the famous film, "The Informer," which since its former showing at the Filmarte has won the film world's highest honor. It was selected by the National Motion Picture Academy, comprising all the recognized executives, technicians and players of filmland, as the finest picture of 1935, and the work of Victor McLaglen, its star, was voted the best piece of individual acting of the year.

"The Informer" will be shown tonight, tomorrow afternoon and night and as the first half of Sunday's double bill.

"Red Salute," bringing Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Young in delightful romantic comedy roles, will start Sunday afternoon, and will supply the second half of Sunday night's double bill. It will be repeated Monday night.

On Tuesday night, at 8 o'clock, Baldwin McGaw and Emma Knox, heads of San Francisco's leading dramatic school, will present, in costume, a reading of "Pride and Prejudice," the first of a series of four readings of contemporary New York hits. The reading will be followed, without additional admission charge, by the regular motion picture program, featuring "Red Salute."

On Wednesday night a single showing will be offered of the renowned documentary films of Joris Ivens, discussed elsewhere in this issue, while on Thursday a request farewell showing of Elizabeth Berner's "Catherine the Great" will attract lovers of screen drama at its best.

Joris Ivens Films for Filmarte

FOR a special showing of a group of his much-talked-of "documentary" films, Joris Ivens, distinguished Dutch motion picture director, will be in Carmel in person next Tuesday evening, and will give a short talk at the Filmarte theater, where the films will be shown. Various described as "art," "truth" and "most effective propaganda," Ivens' films have been a subject of animated discussion wherever they have been shown. A special showing similar to that projected for the Filmarte was held in Hollywood recently, with a distinguished sponsoring group including Dorothy Parker, Alan Campbell, Donald Ogden Stewart, Lewis Milestone, Edwin Justus Mayer, Dr. Hugh Riesenfeld, Kenneth Thompson, John Cromwell and Frank Tuttle.

At 8:30 Tuesday evening at the Filmarte "Borinage," "The New Earth" and certain short subjects, all "experimental" films directed by Ivens, will be shown. "The New Earth" is based on an actual happening in Holland; reclamation of a large part of the Zuider Zee, the planting of wheat; too much wheat on the market, financial panic, and the farmers returning the harvested wheat to the sea whence it came, while hungry children look on.

Carmel Boys Back From Scout Camp

Twenty-five Carmel boys, members of Boy Scout troops 39 and 86 and Sea Scouts, arrived home Tuesday, sunburned and happy, after 10 exciting days at Camp Wing, Big Sur Scout camp. A full program of swimming, hiking and all camp sports was enjoyed, and most of the boys qualified for three advancements. Doing their own cooking under the adult leadership of B. Franklin Dixon, the lads appear to have thrived on it, for a gain in weight from one to six pounds was registered by every boy except one, who was overweight and lost. During the period when the Carmel boys were in camp, the total registration from the entire district was 289.

PINE PITH, PITCH AND BARK

ON no other day are so many people killed or maimed as on the Fourth of July. During the past 30 years more American lives have been lost celebrating our Independence than in acquiring it during the Revolutionary war.

And yet, it is no immutable decree of the gods that each Fourth must be a carnival of death. A little thought and effort, a little care and foresight—and everyone can have just as good a time without suffering the tragedy. We can make it a safe and sane celebration, if we only will.

We know highways will be jammed with picnic-bound autos, with hazardingly wide busses carrying crowds of holiday travelers, with motorcycles and even with an unusual number of hikers along the pavement. Two weeks ago on the week-end there were 22 arrests for traffic violations in Carmel. What will July 4 bring forth? Our police department will be watchful, but it is up to the motorist to use every precaution.

We know children like to play with dangerously powerful fireworks and don't understand how these may blind them. Carmel has a very stringent ordinance against using fireworks. Read up on it.

At this moment, before we ever set out to celebrate, we know all these things. Let's remember them this year. Be careful tomorrow!

AND while we're talking about the "glorious Fourth!" How glad America is to be young and strong and free still on this, the 160th anniversary of our birth to freedom—how glad to have before us a promise of abundance and new glory!

But as men pause to remember the beginnings of our great nation, there is solemn understanding of the liberties we so cherish, and quiet realization that it may be America's part to save them for mankind.

More than a century and a half ago in historic Independence hall in Philadelphia, the courageous founders first gave voice to these liberties as the creed of a whole people. Rulers of an autocratic world were aghast at their audacity, and the oppressed populations of other countries cheered their bold leadership.

Dictatorships hold sway in the world today. Men have lost their freedom after only brief tastes of it, and war threatens. But come what may elsewhere—war, chaos, autocracy—America proposes to hold aloof from it and to preserve those liberties set forth in the Declaration of Independence.

"... We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed..."

Alive still and fresh in their essential dignity, in their simple, straightforward sincerity, those words stand today as the greatest single expression of the true spirit of America.

Zioncheck again breaks into headlines. The only thrill in that was experienced by the newspaper man, who thought it was "signed check."

THE two big political shows are over. Both sides have let fly their opening barrages in the presidential campaign of 1936, and for the moment have ceased firing to let their guns cool before the next assault.

There is a lull while weary politicians get some of the wind they blew forth over agitated ether waves through half the month of June.

Presently they will go into action again, at a gradually increasing tempo until the final showdown in November. Meanwhile the biased press is trying to justify its daily broadsides at the Democrats.

What a stirring, exciting, nerve-racking thing a presidential election year is! But under all the noise runs a strain of solemnity, a vague consciousness that history is in the making, that the future course of the nation is being decided.

One might well ask how a conscientious voter is to get at the truth, see through all the misleading verbiage, the bait, and the political trickery. In California the problem will be complicated by a blanket-sized ballot of state initiatives. And how far these can go in trying to fool the voter, we know from such proposed measures as the Single Tax, trying to hide, as it is, behind the mask of Sales Tax repeal.

If time stood still for half a century to let a man study all the vital questions at stake in this election year, he could scarcely get through the job.

The best we can do is ignore what is obviously claptrap, cling to that group whose basic principles seem most in harmony with our own, and choose the leaders who seem most capable of carrying them out.

TO newspapers of the nation last week came a bit of good news that is worth passing on, since it concerns advertising, and progress in advertising is really good news to every producer, distributor, or consumer—in short, to everyone.

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association reported results of its annual survey, showing that the 387 leading American companies spent $135,000,000 in 1935 to back up their conviction that it pays to advertise in newspapers. This was roughly 60 per cent of their expenditure, leaving 40 per cent for all other media, and the total was considerably more than in the previous year. But it's your good news.

Just the other day Ralph Taylor, executive secretary of the Agriculture Council of California, wrote a piece on what newspaper advertising has done for producers. He cited the "Sunkist" growers of citrus fruits, who in 28 years spent $20,000,000 for newspaper advertising, thereby increasing per capita consumption of their product from 7 pounds to 37.5 pounds, a jump of 428 per cent!

As for distributors, all progressive individual merchants utilized newspapers to boost sales. And the whole system of multiple-unit, big volume, rapid turnover retailing has extensive advertising as its very bedrock basis. From this the public benefits through lower prices.

Whatever else this proves, it does seem to give a lot of official recognition to newspaper advertising as a public service. And that, as gains continue, makes it your good news.

The Frank Baker family have arrived in Carmel, to remain for the month of July. Mr. Baker is connected with the San Jose Mercury-Herald.

Interesting Events In Life Of Bach Told as Festival Nears

By DORA HAGEMEYER

AS the Bach Festival begins its second year in Carmel, it might be timely to recall a few interesting events in the life of the great man whom it commemorates. Although this yearly musical event may sometimes include the work of other masters, it is to the music of Bach that it will continue to be dedicated. For Bach is to music as structure is to the temple. Others may ornament its walls and carve their records on its face, but Bach is that integrity which gives it permanence. He is fundamental, certain and unquestionable. His music proclaims the law, and having set itself four-square upon the foundation of truth, it towers upward with the supreme beauty possible only to living creations.

Johann Sebastian Bach was born in Eisenach, Germany, in 1685; the town where Martin Luther wrote much of his church music. The Bachs had been a musical family for generations and it was with his spirit singing with a great heritage that the little Sebastian began to feel his life-work drawing him with inescapable fascination.

It is said of the young boy that when he was about 10 years of age he saw his elder brother, Johann Christopher, playing from a book of music which he longed to see. He was forbidden to touch it and it was put away in a cupboard and the door locked. Happily the cupboard had a lattice door and the young lad painstakingly copied it out, note for note, by the light of the full moon. Such a passion was typical of his whole life. Never did it occur to Sebastian Bach that there were other things he might do as well as write music. He was dedicated by instinct to his work and he apparently did not question his direction.

Bach seems to have been one of the most loveable of men. His charming home life, with his many children, is well and imaginatively described in Esther Meynell's "Little Chronicle of Magdalena Bach" which may be had at the library.

Magdalena was his second wife for whom he wrote so many lovely songs. Some of these melodies are so simple that children can play them. They were found after his death in an old note-book which he had given to his wife. She had a beautiful voice and he loved nothing better than to accompany her singing.

When the Bachs from far and near came together once a year for a clan-gathering they used to amuse themselves by singing "quodlibets"—harmonizing several familiar tunes and singing them together. The love of making quodlibets may be traced down to the "Air with Thirty Variations" which he wrote in later life.

The organ was Bach's major instrument. The primal necessity of his great spirit was to pour forth floods of sound, and no instrument gave him such scope as the organ. There probably has never been such a magnificent organist as he was. He devised new methods of fingering and pedalling. He knew the structure through and through, until when he sat down to play, the organ became, as it were, an outer body, and he the spirit within, singing and moving all souls to adoration.

The beautiful humility of this man is shown in his dedications. All his work was done in the name of God, and if it was praise-worthy, to God was due the praise. Great religious themes moved him to creation and the cantatas and chorales in which he poured out his fervent spirit are a profound religious experience.

Inexhaustible was the fountain from which the inspiration of this master seemed to flow. Hundreds of church cantatas, the great Latin Mass, the organ music, the chamber music, the five sets of music for the Lord's Passion, the Well-Tempered Clavier, the Suites and Partitas—this great flood of music poured upon a generation not yet ripe for it. That it comes into fuller and fuller recognition as time goes on is one proof that, in spite of all that is wrong with the world, something is essentially and fundamentally right.

About Laura Maxwell, Artist and Pioneer Carmelite

By THELMA B. MILLER

IN case anyone has been looking for Laura Maxwell, who has a way of turning up in unexpected places, with her pictures and painting paraphernalia, and not always in one of her various studios, I discovered her this week behind the lovely tangle of wild shrubbery at the home of her brother, Paul Prince. I went down to see more of her paintings, of which I had had just a tantalizing glimpse at the monthly Art Gallery shows, and incidentally to get a better insight into the personality of a particularly vigorous and yet in some ways typical "old Carmelite."

There are not so many of them left, that "bohemian" group of artists who lived so simply, enjoyed life so fully, and yet were regarded as a race apart by the few "city folks" who found their way here. Those who were here before the San Francisco fire, when Carmel's first boom occurred on the heels of the exodus from the stricken city, are the old artistic aristocracy of Carmel. And of those, Laura Maxwell is one of the few who has been continuously associated with Carmel ever since, though she has made many trips abroad, and during one period, when she was living in France, was away for four whole years. They were long years to her, and when she came back that time, driving alone across the continent just so that she could be steeped in the feeling of her own land, and get all the "expatriate" cobwebs out of her brain, she resolved to roam no more. It was only after seeing and painting the choice beauty of the world that she realized afresh, and fully, the beauty of California and the special beauty of the Monterey Peninsula.

And Mrs. Maxwell has done much to translate and preserve the beauty of California, in a medium which she employs with a forthright vigor much in keeping with her outward personality. She paints more in watercolor than in oil, first, because in scrambling about Point Lobos, her favorite haunt for more than a quarter of a century, she found that a 30-pound kit of oils was a serious handicap. Preferring to complete the painting in the natural setting which inspired it, rather than working from sketches or "notes," as many artists do, she began working in water colors, with the idea that if she did not like the result she could always do the picture over in oils. But she found that due to the purity of color possible in water-colors, she was better satisfied to leave most of her work in the original medium. She uses extraordinarily large brushes, larger even than some artists use for oil, and, as she expressed it, "slathers" of paint. The result is a vigor which few artists achieve in the comparatively limited medium.

Mrs. Maxwell sees nature in brilliant, forthright colors, which makes her particularly adept at catching the spirit of California flowers. She has painted innumerable gorgeous floral still-lives, which she arranges with consummate artistry—so well recognized that she is frequently invited to judge flower shows—and made more effective by the crafty addition of charming bibelots which she has picked up in her travels. She has a beautiful Canton bowl, lined with a clear and lovely blue-green, which she uses so often for a "cool" note in her decidedly warm floral compositions that she calls it her "signature."

This artist realizes that many people are unaware of the full blazing color of California, or that they fail to analyze the colors that they do see. A friend disagreed with her as to her comments, in paint, on colors of a particular Lobos scene. She saw a certain rock as orange, and her friend insisted that the rock was not, never had been and never would be that color.

"I'll prove it to you," said Mrs. Maxwell. She took an orange, laid it in a niche on the rock, and asked the friend to say where the orange was. She couldn't find it.

Mrs. Maxwell paints the rocks of Lobos, the twisted cypresses, the deep and thrilling blue of the sea, the translucent green of little hidden coves, in a manner particularly her own, strongly and with conviction. Always the fine sense of balance, arrangement and judicious selection is manifest. A brilliant, driving imagination infuses her work, and particularly the flower pieces, which she endows with an overflowing opulence and often a peculiar exotic quality. This is notable in some of her arrangements of California wildflowers. Far from being humble field flowers as she has painted them, they become, through selection and arrangement, something royal and triumphant, just as they themselves through sheer force of numbers, as over in Kern county, become incredible and overwhelming.

Your local Bank... Yes...

but it has the financial strength of a great California-wide institution...

From time to time during the past few years, the citizens of some California city have petitioned Bank of America to extend its services into that community. In this way, many of Bank of America's branches have come into being—at the request of the communities they serve.

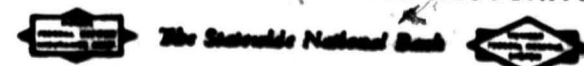

Once established, a Bank of America branch becomes part of the community—serving it with a local personnel, bringing it a complete "big city" banking service... frequently lending more money in the community than the total of all local deposits.

If you have a banking or financial problem... or need a loan for any purpose... first see the manager of Bank of America. He is a banker ready to serve you... to discuss your banking needs and to act according to his own best judgment.

NO BRIEF FOR COMMUNISTS

Because of The Pine Cone's stand in the Sharkey incident, and because The Pine Cone last week accepted and printed from Carmel's most conspicuous radical a letter in which she denied some of the things which Sharkey asserted in the process of bringing vague charges that he "got the dope" on her and others, we are hearing that in some quarters The Pine Cone is being branded a "red" or even a "Communist" publication. It appears advisable to set forth our political stand, just to keep the record clear.

In case anyone is interested in the political beliefs of the people who make The Pine Cone: Mr. and Mrs. Miller are Democrats and Mr. Cockburn is a Republican. Because of this perfectly friendly political division, we had thought it wiser not to discuss partisan politics editorially.

We realize that admitting some of us are going to vote for Roosevelt is sufficient to brand us as "reds" in the minds of a few people, though not, apparently, in the regard of some of our good Republican friends with whom we find it possible to discuss, with courtesy and interest, the divergent philosophies of the two parties.

The fact that we disapprove of the methods and activities of the spy, Sharkey, is not because we hold any brief for communists or communism. We are completely out of accord, not only with the methods but with the basic tenets of communism, insofar as we understand them.

We are not only against the "overthrow of the government by force and violence," but against the sort of regime which communists would institute even by legal methods. Against this latter danger we are prepared to fight—with ballots. Not only do we deplore the dead-end destructiveness of revolution—and no radical regime could ever be instituted in this country without revolution, no matter who started the fight—but we know by reading the lessons of history that the "liberals," in which class we find ourselves, are the first to suffer under a radical regime. Liberals never keep their mouths shut. They are critical under a radical, as under a conservative regime. Consequently they are generally in hot water with both sides.

If anyone in Carmel is engaged in active radical conspiratorial efforts, we want to know about it—all about it. We shall be the first to condemn such activities, but we want facts, not hearsay. The spy Sharkey said he "got the dope." All right, WHAT dope? If he has evidence that may be used in a court of law, he has merely tipped his hand to such an extent that the persons under suspicion have had plenty of time to be off for Mexico or Canada.

Under the Anglo-Saxon tradition—which, after all, is a different tradition than that upon which Sharkey was nurtured in Central Europe—a person is innocent until he is proved guilty. The place to establish guilt is before a judge and jury, not in street-corner conversations or in social gatherings. We are not inclined to take much stock in the unsupported word of a man, who, according to his own statements, has made lies a chief item of his stock-in-trade for so many years that it may be questioned whether he himself knows when he is lying or when he is telling the truth. Nor have we faith in the honor of a man who publicly makes scurrilous references to a woman and jokes in the vilest of taste about his own wife. That, also, is not in the Anglo-Saxon tradition.

ON SEEING A PICTURE OF ROBINSON JEFFERS

*That forward peering, hurt, poetic face,
 Listening, dreaming, towering on long limbs,
 Receives, from out a planet-broken space,
 The loud, resounding tones of star-struck chimes.*

*The whirling sun-star crashes down its course
 To break the awful silence-waves asunder,
 And, hurtling forward with untiring force,
 It leaves upon its track orchestral thunder.*

*Like coastal rock receiving endlessly
 The watery charges of an angry ocean,
 He hears the sounds of an Eternal sea,
 A flooding music with a furious motion;*

*While all around the slimy wave-tossed kelp
 With slippery clutch clings to the rock for help*

—RICHARD BACHE IRWIN.

AFTER VISITING THE ART GALLERY

*I thank you, artist, for this sight,
 Re-clarified and new.
 The eyes which had grown blind to light
 From yours fresh vision drew.*

*The world about me spreads out now
 Alive with light and shade;
 I see the lines that leaf and bough
 Against the sky have made.*

*I am aware once more of earth;
 Its colors sing to me.
 Your vision fostered this re-birth
 Of eyes which rove, and see.*

—BERNICE CAREY FITCH.

THE SCARF

*I'll weave in a shining scarf
 Such vibrant things as these;
 Wild sweet rapture of a bird,
 And star-strewn silences.*

*How can the strands elude me
 When they are real as pain?
 Mists as sheer as gossamer,
 A sunset's vivid stain.*

*You who scorn my handiwork
 With beauty over-run,
 What will you have to color dreams,
 When life is done?*

*I've filched bits of loveliness
 All tenderly laid by
 To fold across my quiet breast
 When I die.*

—BLANCHE LOGAN BURGE.

TASK

*Stand my God in a showy place,
 Cleared of stones and stubble,
 Keep him appeased in some small way,
 I'll need Him when I'm in trouble.*

—NAOMI PHELPS.

OUR POLITICAL STAND

The argument is on, and from now until November the backlashes from an unusually tense political year will be many and discomforting. It is to be hoped that Democrats and Republicans will be able to some extent to discuss their basic differences with amity, and even to do business together on the basis of an equitable exchange of goods and services for cash, not because they agree with each other politically.

As we have stated elsewhere on this editorial page, the owners of The Pine Cone are not of the same political party, which necessarily brings about a certain stalemate in vigorous partisanship. And that may be just as well. It helps us both to keep a clearer political perspective.

The Democratic platform of 1936 and President Roosevelt's acceptance speech are two remarkable documents. They have brought out into the open the real issue of the day, which is the protection of the economic freedom of the individual. This is a new political concept; that government has an obligation to protect American citizens in the pursuit of happiness and the right to earn a living; that political freedom, to be significant, must be bolstered by economic freedom.

We have heard much of "government restriction" during the past three years, but we have not felt it. Nothing in the Roosevelt regime has curbed small business enterprises, such as ours. We have prospered steadily, and our personal investments, which depreciated woefully during the years from 1929 to 1932, have steadily risen in value. In comparison with the tax burdens sustained by citizens of other countries, ours seem little enough to pay for the privilege of living and doing business in the finest country in the world. That is a thumbnail impression of the current political situation, which we offer without apology, but have no desire to thrust down any unwilling throat.

On the other hand, we do not feel it will be a catastrophe if the country "goes Republican" this fall. This country is too great, its "rendezvous with destiny" too inevitable to be thrown out of its course by either party. Whatever happens, there are certain new trends, in some quarters held to be "radical," which will be gradually accepted and assimilated. Today's radicalism will become, as throughout history, tomorrow's conservatism.

A PARK FOR THE MISSION

Considerable interest has been evidenced in the suggestion by Mrs. Sidney Fish, made just before she departed to the east for the summer, that steps should be taken now to create a spacious park around Carmel Mission. Placing on the market of the Walker properties south of Carmel means that land in the immediate vicinity of the Mission will be subdivided for residential purposes. The way to create for the Mission its proper permanent setting of dignified beauty, is for citizens to create a public park. Plans of the subdividers are at a point where such action would now be possible; overlooking the opportunity may mean that the land around the Mission will pass forever into private hands.

Here is the chance for community spirit all over the peninsula to crystalize into a movement which will satisfy the feeling that Carmel Mission is definitely and particularly our own.

Popular Newlyweds Welcomed

FRRIENDS of Conrad Imelman, Carmel's latest deserter of single bliss, gathered around last Thursday night to give Conrad and his bride, the former Dorothy Cruisus, a bit of old-fashioned charivari.

The pair were married in Reno last week, and had been home only a short time when members of the fire department, aided by the Legionnaires and many others, arrived with bells ringing and sirens wailing. The usual crowd attracted by any fire was there, and when the newlyweds ran to the door they saw every indication of a major holocaust. The firemen quickly ran ladders to the roof and windows, turned searchlights on the house and rushed about on the roof and through the various rooms. The crowd grew to such proportions that the police were needed to control traffic, and out-of-towners present must have thought they were seeing the real Carmel they had read about. Pots and pans were beaten lustily, and soon the whole town was there. Conrad, ever the perfect host, invited one and all into his happy home, and the living room was packed with well-wishers, all anxious to meet the bride and congratulate both. After much backslapping, Carmel wished the pair a long and happy married life, and the wedding celebration of one of the town's most popular residents became an outstanding event in Carmel history.

Pomeranian Host to Others of His Breed

Mrs. Millicent Sears' little Pomeranian, "Canis Minor" was host to a group of Pomeranians whose owners were stopping with Mrs. Sears last week. Quite unexpectedly two ladies who had never met before arrived for a few days' sojourn at Highland Studio, and each was a Pom admirer. The Baroness Antoinette Meller, now living in San Francisco, has a fine veteran wolf-sable Pom, 13 years old, which she always carries on her arm. Mrs. Peter V. Rovnianek, of Los Angeles, is the owner of the famous Millstream line of Poms, and brought with her the beautiful champion Millstream Gift of Gold, and a carrying cage from which emerged two three-months-old puppies.

Canis Minor was an enthusiastic host from the moment the guests arrived, and the five pets enjoyed a barbecued steak dinner in the patio, joined for the occasion by Mr. and Mrs. William Raiguel's Pomeranian puppy, Gelee. The Raiguels were Mrs. Sears' guests at a dinner given for Mrs. Rovnianek.

Miniature of Old Mission for Carmel Complete In All Detail

WITH infinite patience, and imagination which amounts to a sort of spiritual insight into the structure of old Carmel Mission, Ben Phillips is creating for Carmel a model of the mission which will be the most authentic replica ever produced. This is a Federal Art Project, and by voting to sustain the cost of the materials, Carmel city council has assured that the model will remain as the property of the community.

As nearly as possible, identical materials are being used in construction of the model, which is made accurately to scale, three-eighths of an inch to a foot. Contrary to wide belief, the mission is not an adobe structure, but is of the Carmel sand-stone locally called "chalk-rock." This means that Mr. Phillips has had to saw, chip and chisel out some 40,000 tiny chalk-rock blocks, cementing them together so craftily that the adhesive is completely hidden.

In drawing up his designs for the little structure, Mr. Phillips has made intensive use of old books showing elevations of the mission in its original, rather than its restored form, has made innumerable visits, with his measuring tape, to the mission itself, checking on every minute detail. He has also been helped to solve knotty structural problems by dreams, in which it has seemed that the spirit of the old padres were actually advising and encouraging him.

It is a job which proceeds slowly, due to the necessity for absolute accuracy. Almost no two windows are of the same shape or dimensions; no two buttresses are exactly the same width or height, or are equally spaced.

The colored plaster which still clings in many places to the surface of the mission was tinted with cinabar from the Almaden region near San Jose. Cinabar from the same region will be used to tint the plaster for the replica, which stands two feet at its highest point and is five feet long.

Door lintels and rafters are to be made from old timbers from the original mission now in possession of a Carmel resident. Floor and roof tiles are being made to scale by children of Sunset school, from original tile now in possession of Harry Downie, curator of the Mission.

Reproductions of the baptismal font and of the figure of St. Benedict in the niche on the south wall under the belfry are being carved by John Catlin, loaned to the project as a request artist. Fifty-six years ago he clambered in play in the ruins of the mission, and at that early age he had already turned to stone-carving, making perhaps the first model of the mission from stone kicked from the belfry wall.

Tiny models of animals for the mission courtyard are being made by Mrs. Paul Beygrau, and upon its solid redwood base, the mission will be naturalistically landscaped. Wherever the mission is exhibited, it will be accompanied by a series of water-color drawings of the mission in its various stages, both inside and outside views. These accurate and beautiful drawings are by William La Grille of Pacific Grove.

Just as the mission, completed in 1787 after 20 years in building, was the only one of the original chain of missions to survive the earthquake of 1812, so is the model mission effectively "earthquake proof" in its structure. Consulting architects say that the base upon which it is built is secure enough to protect it from artificial earthquakes which may occur in moving it. It is expected to go to San Francisco for the Golden Gate International exposition.

Puppet Show at Bali Room Tonight

"Puppet Impertinence of 1936" is the title of the marionette performance to be presented by the famous Olvera Theater Puppeteers in the exotic Bali Room of Hotel Del Monte tonight.

There will also be a special children's matinee at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at which "The Golden Rattle" and other children's tales will be presented.

The Olvera Puppeteers are one of the few companies in this country whose repertoire includes both juvenile and adult entertainment.

It will be the first appearance of these puppeteers on the Monterey peninsula and marks the beginning of a summer tour which will take them to all the fashionable resorts and hotels in California.

ELLIS PATTERSON HERE

Ellis E. Patterson, incumbent assemblyman for this district, and a candidate for re-election on both party tickets, was a Carmel visitor this week, meeting with electors and finding staunch support among peninsula voters.

Mills Students Visit Peninsula

Making their headquarters at Asilomar, students in the summer session of creative writing at Mills college participated over the week-end in an interesting and instructive field trip to Carmel and Monterey, added as a new feature of the department program this year. William Rose Benet, editor, author and poet, member of the Mills summer faculty in creative writing, accompanied the party. Friday afternoon the students and instructors were guests of Mrs. F. A. Ingalls, at her Pebble Beach home, Strawberry Hill. Mrs. Ingalls is chairman of the Associate Council of Mills. Martin Flavin, Highlands playwright, informally addressed the group at the tea hour.

Among the many spots of historical and literary interest visited by the pilgrimage were the Stevenson house in Monterey and Robinson Jeffers home on Carmel Point. The students returned to Mills Sunday evening.

A similar trip is planned early next month to the Dutch Flat home of Bill (Bertram Adams) Martin known throughout the English speaking world for his sea stories.

In speaking of adding field trips to the program of the department of creative writing, Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, Jr., executive secretary of the summer session, said, "The writer, even more than the apprentice in other arts, finds stimulus in new surroundings, particularly those which have stirred the imagination of other writers."
